

Free parenting classes offered

Free parenting skills classes for parents of children aged two to eight years old are being offered at the Oberlin Early Childhood Center.

The 14 weeks of classes will be held Tuesdays, Feb. 21 through May 22 at the childhood center located at 317 E. College St.

A free dinner will be served from 5-5:30 p.m. for participants and the class is 5:30-7:30 p.m.

The classes are designed to promote positive parenting strategies, support children's development, and provide strategies in managing children's behavior.

All participants will receive on-site child care, dinner, transportation assistance if needed, completion certificates and expanded network support.

The class is presented by the Berea Children's Home and family services.

It is supported by grants from the Ohio Children's Trust Fund, Lorain County Children and Families Council, and the Lorain County Board of Mental Health.

For more information, or to register, call 440-260-6468. Class size is limited and registration is required.